Re: Review of Perkins Coie LLP's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Mr. Butswinkas:

Based on public statements and court filings¹ by Perkins Coie LLP ("Perkins Coie"), I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

Perkins Coie publicly has touted its hiring practices, including its diversity fellowships, which have historically been limited to "students of color,"⁵ as "help[ing] create and foster one of the strongest and most diverse talent pipelines in the legal profession”⁶ and “designed to increase the representation of racially diverse lawyers at the firm.”⁷ Merely five months ago, Perkins Coie announced it had “achieved Mansfield 7.0 Certification Plus status for another year from Diversity Lab, which measures how leading law firms have affirmatively considered women, lawyers of color, [and] LGBTQ+ lawyers . . . for recruitment, partnership promotions, and management positions, among other significant benchmarks.”⁸

In addition, in 2020, Microsoft’s Law Firm Diversity Program recognized Perkins Coie as its “top performing law firm” when it came to meeting Microsoft’s diversity goals, demonstrating a five year plan that “achieved impressive progress . . . growing diverse attorney hours on Microsoft matters by 12.3 percentage points (from 56.7% to 69%);” a 10.3 point increase in overall diverse partner representation at the firm (from 33.6% to 43.9%);” and “great progress in diverse representation on its management committee, with over 64% of their committee members identifying as women, minorities, LGBTQ+ people, people with disabilities and veterans.”⁹ In fact, since at least 2012, Perkins Coie has been a leader in a third-party diversity scorecard that scores law firms based on their “percentile ranking of the representation of underrepresented racial and ethnic groups, gender and LGBTQ+ per level and the overall disclosure of DEI data versus firms of a similar size.”¹⁰

Further, Perkins Coie provides several “Resource Groups,” divided on, among other bases, Title VII-protected bases, including race, color, religion, sex, and national origin. For example, Perkins Coie’s “South Asian/Middle Eastern (SAME) Lawyers Resource Group consists of attorneys with backgrounds from South Asian and Middle Eastern nations”¹¹ The group “seeks to attract, welcome, retain, and promote attorneys that identify as South Asian or Middle Eastern” and provide those attorneys with other advancement opportunities.¹² Similarly, the “Asian Pacific Islander Resource Group” seeks to “create business opportunities with clients”¹³

I am concerned that Perkins Coie’s “diversity and inclusion” or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or

As an initial request, please provide responses to the questions outlined below. Please also preserve all relevant records.

Internships, Fellowships, and Scholarships

In public statements and court filings, Perkins Coie has acknowledged that it has had a 1L Diversity Fellowship Program since 1991 and a similar 2L Diversity Fellowship Program since 2021. Perkins Coie also admitted in court filings that, at least until 2023, those hiring programs had a “requirement that participants belong to a group historically underrepresented in the legal profession” and appears to concede that those programs previously limited participation by race and “asked or required [applicants] to identify their race when applying.”¹⁴ Perkins Coie also has asserted in court filings that it changed the criteria for its diversity fellowship programs in 2023.¹⁵

1. Please describe the application and selection criteria used by Perkins Coie for its 1L Diversity Fellowship Program from: (a) 2015 to 2023; and (b) from 2023 to the present.
2. Please describe the application and selection criteria used by Perkins Coie for its 2L Diversity Fellowship Program from: (a) 2021 to 2023; and (b) from 2023 to the present.
3. Does Perkins Coie hire any 1L law students as summer associates other than participants in the firm’s 1L Diversity Fellowship Program?
4. At any point since 2015, did participation in either the 1L or 2L Diversity Fellowship Program provide participants with an accelerated interview, consideration, or selection process for the firm’s regular summer associate program or full-time associate attorney positions? If so, please describe the policy or practice in detail and provide all related documentation.
5. In court filings, Perkins Coie admitted that it engaged in disparate treatment in compensation between summer associates who solely participated in the firm’s regular summer associate program and summer associates who were admitted into the firm’s 1L and 2L Diversity Fellowship Program. The firm admitted that in addition to a “paid summer associate position,” in “recent years, Perkins Coie’s 1L and 2L diversity fellows received an additional stipend, both at the end of the summer and if they returned after graduation for full-time employment at the firm.”¹⁶ Please provide documents and information regarding compensation for the firm’s summer associate program as well as the two “additional stipends” received by all diversity fellows.

SEO Law Fellowship

Dozens of major law firms partner with Sponsors for Educational Opportunity (SEO) Law’s SEO Law Fellowship and employ SEO Fellows at their firms for a 0L summer associate program for incoming law students (students who have been admitted but have not yet started law school).¹⁷ The SEO Law website for the SEO 2025 Law Fellowship Program currently claims that “[a]ll are invited to apply” for the the SEO Law Fellowship.¹⁸ However, the website emphasizes “SEO Law encourages applicants from underserved backgrounds, broadly defined, including but not limited to: race or ethnicity; gender identity or sexual orientation; immigration or veteran status; disability or first-generation status; socioeconomic background or experiences with the criminal justice/child welfare systems.”¹⁹ And, the website’s main photo displays a picture of 20 law students, at least 14 of whom are black students, one of whom is an Asian student, and 8 of whom are women.²⁰ Moreover, certain law schools indicate that the SEO Law Fellowship effectively remains focused on, or restricted to, “students of color.”²¹ According to SEO Law, participants in this program receive an eight-week to ten-week “paid internship at a top law firm with a salary of up to $1,625 per week” and “[a]lmost all of our partner firms actively recruit and regularly hire former SEO Law Fellows for future summer associate positions and full-time associate positions.”²² “While the SEO Law Fellows’ corporate law firm experiences may vary from firm to firm, Fellows can expect to work full-time during the 10-week internship alongside with other 1L and 2L summer associates.”²³ If your firm had SEO Fellows placed at your firm at any point since 2019, please answer the following questions:

8. Since 2019, in what years have SEO Fellows been placed at your firm for an internship?
9. The SEO Fellowship is a paid internship. Did your firm pay the SEO Fellows? If so, how much?
10. During their placement at your firm for their summer internship, at what location did the interns work? Did they work in your firms’ office(s) or other firm premises?

Re: Review of Cooley LLP's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Ms. Proffitt:

Based on public statements¹ by Cooley LLP (Cooley), I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

Cooley has publicly touted its hiring goals, including “targets for greater representation of women in the partnership, diversity among lawyers and diversity in business professionals’ leadership.”⁵ According to your public website, Cooley’s board of director approved a Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Action Plan (“DEI Action Plan”) on August 18, 2020, and updated the DEI

Action Plan on September 30, 2021.⁶ Your landing page on March 13, 2025 summarized the DEI Action Plan and outlined specific metrics such as “increase[ing] the percentage of ethnic, racial, and LGBTQ+ diversity among all lawyers to at least 32%” and “increase[ing] the percentage of ethnic, racial and LGBTQ+ diversity among all managers and directors to at least 37%” by January 1, 2026.⁷ Also on that page, Cooley defined “diversity” as “ethnic/racial diversity and LGBTQ+,” while celebrating its “progress” with the following graphic:⁸

However, as of March 14, 2025, Cooley’s DEI Action Plan landing page is no longer available to the public. Cooley’s sudden, overnight removal of its “board approved DEI plan” from its public facing landing page gives me pause.

The chair of Cooley’s diversity committee is “extremely proud that we continue to make meaningful strides toward achieving our ambitious representation goals,”⁹ goals that the Chicago Committee recognized with a 2024 Diversity Award for Commitment and Investment “based on the firm’s racially/ethnically diverse associate hiring, partnership ranks, diversification of client teams, and inclusive succession planning.”¹⁰

As reflected in the graphic above, in only approximately two years (from 2020 to April 2023), Cooley increased its percentage of “ethnic/racial diversity and LGBTQ+” “diversity among lawyers” by nine percentage points.¹¹ That rapid increase resulted in “diversity” representation that is three percentage points above even the firm’s own six-year goal for “diversity among lawyers.”¹² It is unclear how much more that representation percentage may have increased in the approximately two additional years since April 1, 2023, but it is reasonable to assume that this trend has continued, causing the firm to even further exceed its own “ambitious” 2026 goal.

Cooley directly (and likely significantly) financially benefited from the employment decisions the firm took that led to such a rapid increase in racial, ethnic, and LGBTQ+ representation in its lawyer ranks. In 2021 and 2022, Microsoft’s Law Firm Diversity Program recognized Cooley as one of five law firms meeting Microsoft’s diversity “goals,” “earning the full program bonus”¹³ of 3% of annual fees¹⁴ in 2021 and meeting “goals of increasing diversity on the teams that work on Microsoft matters” in 2022.¹⁵

In addition, a few months ago, Cooley announced it had “achieved Mansfield Rule Certification status” which “measures whether law firms have affirmatively considered women, underrepresented racial and ethnic groups, LGBTQ+ lawyers and lawyers with disabilities for leadership and governance roles, equity partner promotions, formal client pitch opportunities and senior lateral positions.”¹⁶ Diversity Lab has named Cooley an “Inclusion Blueprint Champion,” an honor Cooley achieved by showing “diversity representation based on average or above-average thresholds, year-over-year diversity representation progress,” and “diversity tracking.”¹⁷

In fact, since at least 2012, Cooley has been ranked by a third-party diversity scorecard that scores law firms based on their “percentile ranking of the representation of underrepresented racial and ethnic groups, gender and LGBTQ+ per level and the overall disclosure of DEI data versus firms of a similar size.”¹⁸ Last year, Cooley was ranked among the top three of all participating law firms.¹⁹

It appears likely that Cooley disparately provides access to certain privileges of employment (training and leadership development) based on its employees’ race or other protected characteristics. Cooley advertises that it is a member of the Leadership Council on Legal Diversity; that through its “membership in the program, we nominate a diverse set of lawyers for leadership development programs each year;” and that “Cooley is recognized as a key law firm partner by LCLD.”²⁰ Cooley has provided “diverse” lawyers access to these unique leadership development program and training since 2013.²¹ Cooley does not indicate how it defines “diverse” for purposes of selecting lawyers for access to these unique LCLD programs, but it is reasonable to assume that Cooley consistently defines “diversity” as “ethnic/racial diversity and LGBTQ+,” as it does in its DEI Action Plan.

In its press releases touting its lawyers’ participation in LCLD programs following their nomination by Cooley, Cooley describes the LCLD “Pathfinders Program [as] connect[ing] high-potential, early-career lawyers of diverse backgrounds and perspectives from LCLD member organizations with foundational leadership skills and relationship-building resources during a seven-month professional development program.”²² Cooley describes the LCLD “Fellows Program [as] prepar[ing] high-potential, mid-career lawyers of diverse backgrounds and perspectives at LCLD member organizations with professional and personal development opportunities, leadership training, relationship-building resources and access to LCLD members (including managing partners and general counsel).”²³ Cooley’s selection of a Cooley lawyer for the LCLD Pathfinders Program allows that lawyer to receive access to LCLD-provided “train[ing] . . . in critical career-development strategies including leadership and the building of professional networks,” and indicates that that Cooley lawyer is “recognized as emerging leaders within their organization,” that is, within Cooley.²⁴ Cooley’s selection of a Cooley lawyer for the LCLD Fellows Program is designed to “increase diversity at the [firm’s] leadership levels” and places that lawyer “on a trajectory towards leadership positions” at Cooley.²⁵

Cooley also provides several “Affinity Groups,” divided on, among other bases, Title VII-protected bases, including race, color, religion, sex, and national origin. For example, Cooley’s “Black Business Professionals Affinity Group provides a safe space for engagement on various issues, including equity and inclusion, for members who self-identify as Black or of African descent.”²⁶ Similarly, the “Latinx Affinity Group” “The group is dedicated to recruiting, mentoring, supporting and retaining Latinx and other diverse business professionals, law students and lawyers throughout their careers. Further, it serves an integral role in advocating for all Latinx employees”²⁷

I am concerned that Cooley’s “diversity, equity, and inclusion” or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or in part—on race, sex, or other protected characteristics, in violation of Title VII. SEO Law Fellowship

Dozens of major law firms partner with Sponsors for Educational Opportunity (SEO) Law’s SEO Law Fellowship and employ SEO Fellows at their firms for a 0L summer associate program for incoming law students (students who have been admitted but have not yet started law school).³² The SEO Law website for the SEO 2025 Law Fellowship Program currently claims that “[a]ll are invited to apply” for the the SEO Law Fellowship.³³ However, the website emphasizes “SEO Law encourages applicants from underserved backgrounds, broadly defined, including but not limited to: race or ethnicity; gender identity or sexual orientation; immigration or veteran status; disability or first-generation status; socioeconomic background or experiences with the criminal justice/child welfare systems.”³⁴ And, the website’s main photo displays a picture of 20 law students, at least 14 of whom are black students, one of whom is an Asian student, and 8 of whom are women.³⁵ Moreover, certain law schools indicate that the SEO Law Fellowship effectively remains focused

Re: Review of Reed Smith's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Ms. Ryan:

Based on public statements¹ by Reed Smith LLP ("Reed Smith"), I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

Reed Smith has publicly touted its commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion in its annual reports, outlining the composition of this workforce and summer associates. In 2020, and in response to the George Floyd incident, Reed Smith created its "Race Equity Action Plan" ("REAP").⁵ According to its REAP, Reed Smith outlined the following "goals" for the firm to meet by 2024:

⁴ 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-2(a)(2).

⁵ Reed Smith LLP, ANNUAL REPORT 2021, Diversity, Equity & Inclusion, 6.

- Increase the number of Black lawyers across the firm by 50%;
- Improve Black lawyer and staff attrition rate to be consistent with the firmwide attrition rate by 2024;
- Increase the percentage of Black leadership by 30%; and
- Expand engagement with clients to uncover opportunities for Black lawyer development.⁶

Expanding on this initiative, Reed Smith created a series of YouTube videos, which have since been removed.⁷ An initiative with overt specific racial “goals,” coupled with the removal of related public facing documents, is concerning.

These concerns are amplified after reviewing Reed Smith’s reported REAP progress from 2021. In just one quarter, Reed Smith increased its Black lawyers on its Global Leadership Team from 4.76% to 7.41% — a 55% increase in 3 months.⁸ By the end of 2021, this figure grew to 8.64% — an 81% increase from 2020.

REAP progress - Internal well-being and learning

REAP goal – leadership
(30 percent increase in Black leadership by 2024)

In 2024, 37.2% of Reed Smith’s workforce was “diverse,”⁹ compared to 35.4% in 2023.¹⁰ Similarly, in 2024 Reed Smith also announced that 84% of its summer associates were women or “diverse,”¹¹ a remarkable 2% increase from 2023’s 82%.¹² Currently, Reed Smith highlights that 74% of its new associates are “diverse.”¹³

These astonishing “gains” are likely attributable in part to employer required scorecards for practice group leaders and managing office partners. According to its 2021 Annual Report,

Reed Smith's score cards "aim to incentivize and motivate [its] leaders to focus on the recruitment, retention, and promotion of diverse lawyers within their office/group." Leaders are required "to create scorecards which measure diversity metrics for each group and office, including headcount by title, year to date attrition, year to date hires, and year to date promotions."¹⁴

Additionally, Reed Smith has initiated several DEI programs, including:

- "RISING": a facially race-restricted "program designed to support an inaugural cohort of 32 Black lawyers in accelerating progress toward their practice growth goals and prospective opportunities." Specifically, "each participant is matched with a 'connector,' who is a senior firm lawyer, and a Senior Management Team sponsor...Connectors work proactively to put their connectees into the path of opportunity,"¹⁵
- STAARS: "Sustaining and Training African Americans at Reed Smith," a facially race-restricted program that focuses on the development of "African Americans throughout the firm."¹⁶ Members are invited to attend career development conferences, retreats,¹⁷ and training such as the "Associate Academy" which provides "coaching, community building, and training;"¹⁸
- DEI Leadership Development Program: a program that "provides training and opportunities to [its] partners, counsel and senior professional staff. Of those who participated in the 2022/2023 program, 67% were eligible for promotion;"¹⁹and
- Various 1L and 2L Diversity Fellowship programs that historically required the candidate be "diverse:"²⁰

Re: Review of A & O Shearman's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Ms. Lilienfeld:

Based on public statements¹ by A & O Shearman, I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

I am concerned that A & O Shearman's "diversity, equity, and inclusion," "DEI," diversity, or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or in part—on race, sex, or other protected characteristics, in violation of Title VII. Re: Review of Debevoise & Plimpton LLP's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Mr. Furci:

Based on public statements¹ by Debevoise & Plimpton LLP, I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

I am concerned that Debevoise & Plimpton LLP's "diversity, equity, and inclusion," "DEI," diversity, or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or in part—on race, sex, or other protected characteristics, in violation of Title VII. I believe you can be of assistance in helping to identify all relevant

Re: Review of Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer LLP's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Ms. Solum:

Based on public statements¹ by Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer LLP, I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

I am concerned that Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer LLP's "diversity, equity, and inclusion," "DEI," diversity, or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or in part—on race, sex, or other protected characteristics, in violation of Title VII. I believe you can be of assistance in helping to identify

SEO Law Fellowship

Dozens of major law firms partner with Sponsors for Educational Opportunity (SEO) Law's SEO Law Fellowship and employ SEO Fellows at their firms for a 0L summer associate program for incoming law students (students who have been admitted but have not yet started law school).⁵ The SEO Law website for the SEO 2025 Law Fellowship Program currently claims that "[a]ll are invited to apply” for the the SEO Law Fellowship.⁶ However, the website emphasizes “SEO Law encourages applicants from underserved backgrounds, broadly defined, including but not limited to: race or ethnicity; gender identity or sexual orientation; immigration or veteran status; disability or first-generation status; socioeconomic background or experiences with the criminal justice/child welfare systems.”⁷ And, the website’s main photo displays a picture of 20 law students, at least 14 of whom are black students, one of whom is an Asian student, and 8 of whom are women.⁸ Moreover, certain law schools indicate that the SEO Law Fellowship effectively remains focused on, or restricted to, “students of color.”⁹ According to SEO Law, participants in this program receive an eight-week to ten-week “paid internship at a top law firm with a salary of up to $1,625 per week” and “[a]lmost all of our partner firms actively recruit and regularly hire former SEO Law Fellows for future summer associate positions and full-time associate positions.”¹⁰ “While the SEO Law Fellows’ corporate law firm experiences may vary from firm to firm, Fellows can expect to work full-time during the 10-week internship alongside with other 1L and 2L summer associates.”¹¹

SEO Law’s website indicates that SEO Fellows were placed at Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer LLP’s offices in Summer 2024. Please answer the following questions:

SEO Law Fellowship

Dozens of major law firms partner with Sponsors for Educational Opportunity (SEO) Law's SEO Law Fellowship and employ SEO Fellows at their firms for a 0L summer associate program for incoming law students (students who have been admitted but have not yet started law school).⁵ The SEO Law website for the SEO 2025 Law Fellowship Program currently claims that "[a]ll are invited to apply” for the the SEO Law Fellowship.⁶ However, the website emphasizes “SEO Law encourages applicants from underserved backgrounds, broadly defined, including but not limited to: race or ethnicity; gender identity or sexual orientation; immigration or veteran status; disability or first-generation status; socioeconomic background or experiences with the criminal justice/child welfare systems.”⁷ And, the website’s main photo displays a picture of 20 law students, at least 14 of whom are black students, one of whom is an Asian student, and 8 of whom are women.⁸ Moreover, certain law schools indicate that the SEO Law Fellowship effectively remains focused on, or restricted to, “students of color.”⁹ According to SEO Law, participants in this program receive an eight-week to ten-week “paid internship at a top law firm with a salary of up to $1,625 per week” and “[a]lmost all of our partner firms actively recruit and regularly hire former SEO Law Fellows for future summer associate positions and full-time associate positions.”¹⁰ “While the SEO Law Fellows’ corporate law firm experiences may vary from firm to firm, Fellows can expect to work full-time during the 10-week internship alongside with other 1L and 2L summer associates.”¹¹

Re: Review of Hogan Lovells LLP's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Mr. Zaldivar:

Based on public statements¹ by Hogan Lovells LLP, I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

I am concerned that Hogan Lovells LLP's "diversity, equity, and inclusion," "DEI," diversity, or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or in part—on race, sex, or other protected characteristics, in violation of Title VII. I believe you can be of assistance in helping to identify all relevant

Re: Review of Kirkland & Ellis LLP's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Mr. Ballis:

Based on public statements¹ by Kirkland & Ellis LLP, I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

I am concerned that Kirkland & Ellis LLP's "diversity, equity, and inclusion," "DEI," diversity, or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or in part—on race, sex, or other protected characteristics, in violation of Title VII. I believe you can be of assistance in helping to identify all relevant

SEO Law Fellowship

Dozens of major law firms partner with Sponsors for Educational Opportunity (SEO) Law's SEO Law Fellowship and employ SEO Fellows at their firms for a 0L summer associate program for incoming law students (students who have been admitted but have not yet started law school).⁵ The SEO Law website for the SEO 2025 Law Fellowship Program currently claims that "[a]ll are invited to apply” for the the SEO Law Fellowship.⁶ However, the website emphasizes “SEO Law encourages applicants from underserved backgrounds, broadly defined, including but not limited to: race or ethnicity; gender identity or sexual orientation; immigration or veteran status; disability or first-generation status; socioeconomic background or experiences with the criminal justice/child welfare systems.”⁷ And, the website’s main photo displays a picture of 20 law students, at least 14 of whom are black students, one of whom is an Asian student, and 8 of whom are women.⁸ Moreover, certain law schools indicate that the SEO Law Fellowship effectively remains focused on, or restricted to, “students of color.”⁹ According to SEO Law, participants in this program receive an eight-week to ten-week “paid internship at a top law firm with a salary of up to $1,625 per week” and “[a]lmost all of our partner firms actively recruit and regularly hire former SEO Law Fellows for future summer associate positions and full-time associate positions.”¹⁰ “While the SEO Law Fellows’ corporate law firm experiences may vary from firm to firm, Fellows can expect to work full-time during the 10-week internship alongside with other 1L and 2L summer associates.”¹¹

SEO Law’s website indicates that SEO Fellows were placed at Kirkland & Ellis LLP’s offices in Summer 2024. Please answer the following questions:

11. Did the SEO Fellows placed at your firm use computers and other technology provided by your firm during the internship?

SEO Law Fellowship

Dozens of major law firms partner with Sponsors for Educational Opportunity (SEO) Law's SEO Law Fellowship and employ SEO Fellows at their firms for a 0L summer associate program for incoming law students (students who have been admitted but have not yet started law school).⁵ The SEO Law website for the SEO 2025 Law Fellowship Program currently claims that "[a]ll are

Re: Review of McDermott Will & Emery's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Mr. Coleman:

Based on public statements¹ by McDermott Will & Emery, I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

I am concerned that McDermott Will & Emery's "diversity, equity, and inclusion," "DEI," diversity, or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or in part—on race, sex, or other protected characteristics, in violation of Title VII. I believe you can be of assistance in helping to identify all relevant

Re: Review of Milbank LLP's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Mr. Edelman:

Based on public statements¹ by Milbank LLP, I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

I am concerned that Milbank LLP's "diversity, equity, and inclusion," "DEI," diversity, or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or in part—on race, sex, or other protected characteristics, in violation of Title VII. I believe you can be of assistance in helping to identify all relevant information I might consider. As an initial request, please provide responses to the questions outlined below. Please also preserve all relevant records.

¹ This letter is exclusively based on publicly available information regarding your firm, including but not limited to documents and information published on your firm's public website; public statements by your firm and its leadership; and news reporting.

SEO Law Fellowship

Dozens of major law firms partner with Sponsors for Educational Opportunity (SEO) Law's SEO Law Fellowship and employ SEO Fellows at their firms for a 0L summer associate program for incoming law students (students who have been admitted but have not yet started law school).⁵ The SEO Law website for the SEO 2025 Law Fellowship Program currently claims that "[a]ll are invited to apply" for the the SEO Law Fellowship.⁶ However, the website emphasizes "SEO Law encourages applicants from underserved backgrounds, broadly defined, including but not limited

SEO Law’s website indicates that SEO Fellows were placed at Milbank LLP’s offices in Summer 2024. Please answer the following questions:

11. Did the SEO Fellows placed at your firm use computers and other technology provided by your firm during the internship?

13. Did your firm or its attorneys assign projects, tasks, and other work duties to the SEO Fellows during their placement at your firm? Did those duties relate to your firm’s work?

Re: Review of Morrison & Foerster LLP's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Mr. McCrath:

Based on public statements¹ by Morrison & Foerster LLP, I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

I am concerned that Morrison & Foerster LLP's "diversity, equity, and inclusion," "DEI," diversity, or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or in part—on race, sex, or other protected characteristics, in violation of Title VII. I believe you can be of assistance in helping to identify all relevant

Re: Review of Ropes & Gray LLP's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Ms. Jones:

Based on public statements¹ by Ropes & Gray LLP, I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

I am concerned that Ropes & Gray LLP's "diversity, equity, and inclusion," "DEI," diversity, or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or in part—on race, sex, or other protected characteristics, in violation of Title VII. I believe you can be of assistance in helping to identify all relevant

SEO Law Fellowship

Dozens of major law firms partner with Sponsors for Educational Opportunity (SEO) Law's SEO Law Fellowship and employ SEO Fellows at their firms for a 0L summer associate program for incoming law students (students who have been admitted but have not yet started law school).⁵ The SEO Law website for the SEO 2025 Law Fellowship Program currently claims that "[a]ll are invited to apply” for the the SEO Law Fellowship.⁶ However, the website emphasizes “SEO Law encourages applicants from underserved backgrounds, broadly defined, including but not limited to: race or ethnicity; gender identity or sexual orientation; immigration or veteran status; disability or first-generation status; socioeconomic background or experiences with the criminal justice/child welfare systems.”⁷ And, the website’s main photo displays a picture of 20 law students, at least 14 of whom are black students, one of whom is an Asian student, and 8 of whom are women.⁸ Moreover, certain law schools indicate that the SEO Law Fellowship effectively remains focused on, or restricted to, “students of color.”⁹ According to SEO Law, participants in this program receive an eight-week to ten-week “paid internship at a top law firm with a salary of up to $1,625 per week” and “[a]lmost all of our partner firms actively recruit and regularly hire former SEO Law Fellows for future summer associate positions and full-time associate positions.”¹⁰ “While the SEO Law Fellows’ corporate law firm experiences may vary from firm to firm, Fellows can expect to work full-time during the 10-week internship alongside with other 1L and 2L summer associates.”¹¹

SEO Law’s website indicates that SEO Fellows were placed at Ropes & Gray LLP’s offices in Summer 2024. Please answer the following questions:

11. Did the SEO Fellows placed at your firm use computers and other technology provided by your firm during the internship?
12. Did your firm or its attorneys have the right to control when, where, and how the SEO Fellows performed their internship duties during their placement at your firm?

Re: Review of Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Mr. Millard:

Based on public statements¹ by Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP, I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

I am concerned that Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP's "diversity, equity, and inclusion," "DEI," diversity, or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or in part—on race, sex, or other protected characteristics, in violation of Title VII. I believe you can be of assistance in helping to identify

Re: Review of Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Mr. London:

Based on public statements¹ by Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP, I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

I am concerned that Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP's "diversity, equity, and inclusion," "DEI," diversity, or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or in part—on race, sex, or other protected characteristics, in violation of Title VII. I believe you can be of assistance in helping to identify

SEO Law Fellowship

Dozens of major law firms partner with Sponsors for Educational Opportunity (SEO) Law's SEO Law Fellowship and employ SEO Fellows at their firms for a 0L summer associate program for incoming law students (students who have been admitted but have not yet started law school).⁵ The SEO Law website for the SEO 2025 Law Fellowship Program currently claims that "[a]ll are invited to apply” for the the SEO Law Fellowship.⁶ However, the website emphasizes “SEO Law encourages applicants from underserved backgrounds, broadly defined, including but not limited to: race or ethnicity; gender identity or sexual orientation; immigration or veteran status; disability or first-generation status; socioeconomic background or experiences with the criminal justice/child welfare systems.”⁷ And, the website’s main photo displays a picture of 20 law students, at least 14 of whom are black students, one of whom is an Asian student, and 8 of whom are women.⁸ Moreover, certain law schools indicate that the SEO Law Fellowship effectively remains focused on, or restricted to, “students of color.”⁹ According to SEO Law, participants in this program receive an eight-week to ten-week “paid internship at a top law firm with a salary of up to $1,625 per week” and “[a]lmost all of our partner firms actively recruit and regularly hire former SEO Law Fellows for future summer associate positions and full-time associate positions.”¹⁰ “While the SEO Law Fellows’ corporate law firm experiences may vary from firm to firm, Fellows can expect to work full-time during the 10-week internship alongside with other 1L and 2L summer associates.”¹¹

SEO Law’s website indicates that SEO Fellows were placed at Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP’s offices in Summer 2024. Please answer the following questions:

SEO Law Fellowship

Dozens of major law firms partner with Sponsors for Educational Opportunity (SEO) Law's SEO Law Fellowship and employ SEO Fellows at their firms for a 0L summer associate program for incoming law students (students who have been admitted but have not yet started law school).⁵ The SEO Law website for the SEO 2025 Law Fellowship Program currently claims that "[a]ll are

Re: Review of WilmerHale's Compliance with Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

Dear Mr. Sahni:

Based on public statements¹ by WilmerHale, I am seeking information about the firm's employment practices. Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. (Title VII) prohibits an employer from discriminating against an individual because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.² Under Title VII, an employer initiative, policy, program, or practice may be unlawful if it involves an employer, or other covered entity, taking an employment action motivated—in whole or in part—by race, sex, or another protected characteristic.³ Title VII also bars employers from limiting, segregating, or classifying employees based on race, sex, or other protected characteristics in a way that affects their status or deprives them of employment opportunities, including in voluntary employee groups and activities which are employer sponsored.⁴ It is the responsibility of the EEOC to enforce the provisions of Title VII with respect to private employers.

I am concerned that WilmerHale's "diversity, equity, and inclusion," "DEI," diversity, or other employment programs, policies, and practices may entail unlawful disparate treatment in terms, conditions, and privileges of employment, or unlawful limiting, segregating, and classifying based—in whole or in part—on race, sex, or other protected characteristics, in violation of Title VII. I believe you can be of assistance in helping to identify all relevant information I might consider. As an initial request, please provide responses to the questions outlined below. Please also preserve all relevant records.

¹ This letter is exclusively based on publicly available information regarding your firm, including but not limited to documents and information published on your firm's public website; public statements by your firm and its leadership; and news reporting.
